

Overview

Extensia links healthcare providers, consumers and their communities to enable them to achieve more efficient and better health care.

Extensia was established through the Commonwealth Research Centre Scheme to develop a Patient Centric Shared Electronic Health Record system and has continued its development meeting the specific requirements of clinicians and patients.

Extensia's core technologies are RecordPoint and EPRX.

RecordPoint is a flexible, privacy compliant Shared Electronic Health Record which delivers substantive clinical benefits. Extensia's clients – consumers, clinicians and allied health – can continue using their purpose built systems while sharing relevant summary data through a single point of unified access, RecordPoint.

RecordPoint has a proven track record and has been implemented in State and Primary Health programs.

EPRX is an electronic directory and referral tool which can be seamlessly integrated with existing clinical systems. The concept of the EPRX was born directly from the frustrations faced daily by our practicing clinical lead, one of Extensia's Directors.

Extensia takes a new and innovative approach blending its clinical and technology knowledge to solve issues facing practising clinicians with improved clinical outcomes as its primary value.

Extensia's products meet Australian and International standards and are provided as a service utilising advanced secure facilities in our Brisbane Data Centre or as a Licence for institutional and government users if required.
